A Change in Thinking

Have you ever began with a goal or objective and realized months into the project you need to change your thinking.

Well, being a novice at social media, websites, etc., content is important. Now this newsletter is just well into the first year but with so much information available I decided people do not want to read newsletters as much as they want short blurps of information. Year end 2008 I began to blog. First it was Green Chatter and just this month began Stone Rings.

The obvious is Green Chatter is about the environment while Stone Rings is about telephony, my profession. Not sure how this will turn out but offering short amounts of information may be a better choice.

When we read so much telling us people in exposed to too much information and thinking this through is in part the reason for my decision.

I never have time to read all I want/need to read from books and I love books and reading.

Frustration!!

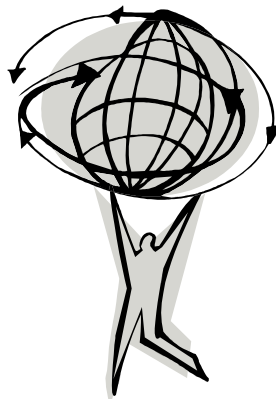

Check out the blogs and if you as a follower find the information helpful let me know.

These newsletters were for you, the reader. So are the blogs. It takes seconds to read blogs and minutes to read newsletters. So in an effort to save time for viewers. To save time for two blogs this will be the last newsletter posted. At least for now.

Let me hear from you on the blog spots, one or both.

Catch up with Green Chatter Blogger, just Google. It will show up, I promise.

The other is Stone Rings Blogger not yet a Google pop up but you can reach me via the email to web address on my web site, just type in the name.

Creative Corner

Not sure all my ideas are creative Ina Stone but I continue to be a worthy source for informing others, sharing quality information and bringing ideas to the forefront. We'll see what works best.

We have the whole world in our hands. We can make a difference, one earth friendly act at a time.

Thanks to all who have shared, read, followed, enlisted suggestions given and for input too.

Sincerely,
